

RIGACAP · MOMENTUM, BUILT AROUND THE DRAWDOWN

The Sales Playbook

How to find the investor this is right for — and let go of the one it isn't. Two tiers, one job: match the person to the dial. The same engine is a great fit for one investor and a wrong fit for another — so selling it well is an act of matching, not persuading.

THE ONE RULE THAT GOVERNS EVERYTHING

Your job is filtration, not conversion.

Do not try to close everyone. A mis-matched investor is worse than a lost one — they cancel within a quarter the moment a bull market rips and they feel they're "missing out," and they tell people it didn't work. A well-qualified investor stays for years, because you set the expectation honestly on day one. Disqualify fast, and disqualify out loud. An honest "this probably isn't for you" is the most powerful thing you can say to the right person in the room.

THE HONEST ONE-LINER (MEMORIZE THIS)

RigaCap is momentum built around the drawdown — a regime-adaptive engine that captures durable growth while cutting the depth and length of the pain, and keeps you invested when everyone else is panic-selling the bottom.

Lead with the result and the thesis, not the machinery. Two dials on one engine: Preserver protects first, Maximizer pushes for growth with the same drawdown discipline underneath. The people it fits lean in; the people it doesn't self-select out — which is exactly what you want.

THE NUMBERS YOU'LL LEAN ON (WALK-FORWARD, 2026 VINTAGE)

PRESERVER · 5YR 13.0% 1.28 Sharpe · -12.9% DD	MAXIMIZER · 5YR 31.4% 1.51 Sharpe · -14.9% DD	SPY · 5YR 14.2% -25.4% drawdown	SPY · 21YR 9.8% -55% drawdown

Every figure in this doc is walk-forward (no hindsight), survivorship-free, and point-in-time. Do not invent numbers you don't see here — if a prospect asks for something you don't have, say so.

THE SAME ENGINE, TWO OUTCOMES

A The Protector

Wants to grow but can't stomach a deep hole. Values sleeping at night and staying invested through fear over bragging rights at the country club. This engine is elite for them — that's the Preserver dial.

F The Index-Beater

Wants to beat the S&P every quarter and checks the benchmark weekly. In a smooth melt-up this trails on purpose — they'll feel it, then churn. Don't sell to them.

WHAT YOU'RE SELLING

Preserver · protect

$129/mo · founding rate for early members

5yr 13.0% · 1.28 Sharpe · -12.9% DD | 21yr 7.7% · 0.87 · -13.7%

The capital-preservation dial. Growth with the drawdown held to roughly half the market's. For preservers, retirees, and the advisers who serve them. The flagship — most of your conversations.

+ Maximizer · grow

add-on · sits on top of Preserver

5yr 31.4% · 1.51 Sharpe · -14.9% DD | 21yr 13.5% · 0.93 · -20.8%

Full breakout offense with the same drawdown discipline underneath — it eases exposure when its own turbulence spikes, so you don't ride a momentum unwind to the floor. For disciplined growth-seekers who can accept a bigger swing.

The frame that lands: it's the brakes, not the horsepower

Nobody wins a Grand Prix on the straights alone. The driver who wins is the one who can brake latest and carry speed through the corner because they trust the car to hold. RigaCap is that braking and cornering system. Preserver is the car built to survive every corner on the calendar; Maximizer is the same chassis with more power — but the same brakes. Control is what lets you keep the throttle down when others lift.

The people you'll meet

Sort every prospect into one of these in the first five minutes. Three you serve; the fourth — the pure index-beater — you politely release.

The Protector

WHO	55–70, $250k–$2M investable, at or near retirement — "I've built it; now I can't afford to give it back." Lived through 2008 and/or 2022 and remembers the fear in their body.
THEIR PAIN	Caught between two fears: a deep drawdown erasing years of gains, and missing the recovery by sitting in cash. They no longer have the horizon to dig out of a –50% year.
YOUR PITCH	"You don't need to beat the market — you need to grow without getting destroyed, and not panic-sell at the bottom. Over 21 years this held its worst drawdown to about –14% while the market fell –55% , and it was essentially flat in 2008 when the S&P lost nearly 38%."
PROOF TO USE	Preserver 21yr: –13.7% max drawdown vs SPY –55% . 2008: +0.1% vs SPY –37.7%. A typical 12-month window is +10.7%, positive 77% of the time . Fully systematic — no emotional exits, ever.
TOP OBJECTION	"It lags in strong bull years." → "Sometimes, and by design . That's the premium you pay for the crash protection. You're buying the brakes, not a faster car."
DISQUALIFY IF	They benchmark to the S&P weekly and get itchy about "keeping up." That itch becomes a cancellation the first hot bull quarter.
WHAT CLOSES	Sleep-at-night growth + honest expectations. "In a raging bull you may trail — that's the deal we're making. In the year that scares everyone, you'll be glad you were here."

The Independent RIA / Adviser

WHO	Fee-only independent RIA, book of $20–200M . Independent is the word that matters — wirehouse advisers (Merrill, Morgan, etc.) can't approve outside strategies, so they aren't your buyer.
THEIR PAIN	Their career risk is asymmetric : they fear underperforming in a bull market (clients leave and blame them personally) far more than participating in a crash (everyone's down together, nobody gets fired). And they dread the 3 a.m. panic-sell call at the bottom.
YOUR PITCH	"Position this as a 10–20% sleeve , not a core holding. It's the part of the book built to hold up when clients are scared — a behavioral tool that keeps them in their seats through the drawdown. In F1 terms, it's the braking system for the client relationship."
PROOF TO USE	Drawdown control across two full crises (2008 flat, 2022 shallow) and fully systematic — no adviser discretion to defend to a client afterward. Down-month capture of –1.05 for Preserver vs SPY's –3.85 . Methodology + risk docs for their diligence, plus client-education one-pagers.
RE-ENTRY QUESTION	Advisers always ask "when does it get back in?" → "It's rules-based and continuous — as the regime turns constructive, exposure rebuilds automatically. There's no human deciding to buy back in , which is exactly the discretion risk you're trying to remove."
TOP OBJECTION	"No long live track record." → "Correct — which is why it starts as a small sleeve, and why we're transparent about the live rollout. Start at 5%, watch it prove out, expand. "
DISQUALIFY IF	Wirehouse (can't allocate), or they want to white-label a "beat-the-market" story. This is a sleeve and a behavioral tool, not a performance headline.
WHAT CLOSES	Land and expand. One small sleeve, transparent reporting, grow with proof. The adviser channel is a multi-year relationship, not a one-call close.

The Disciplined Growth-Seeker

WHO	Younger (30–45), higher risk tolerance, growth-minded, follows momentum and tech — but has already been burned by a blow-up (2022, meme stocks, crypto) and knows it.
THEIR PAIN	Wants big upside but got wrecked by a drawdown once and hasn't forgotten. Knows, honestly, they lack the discipline to cut risk at the top — nobody sells into euphoria on their own.
YOUR PITCH	"Growth with the brakes built in. Over five years the Maximizer dial compounded at 31.4% a year while holding the worst drawdown to –14.9% — a stronger drawdown than the market's own –25%. In 2020 it was +34.9% ; the same engine keeps you from riding the next unwind to the floor."
PROOF TO USE	Maximizer 5yr 31.4% / 1.51 Sharpe / –14.9% DD ; typical 12-mo +26.5%, positive 77% of windows. Market the durable edge + the drawdown discipline , never a single peak number. Honesty about the bigger swing builds trust with this buyer.
TOP OBJECTION	"Why not just do it myself?" → "Because you won't cut risk at the top — you already told me that. This does it for you, systematically, every day."
DISQUALIFY IF	They want leverage, options, or lottery tickets. This is disciplined momentum, not a casino. Over-promise here and you've built a churn machine.
WHAT CLOSES	"Upside without the blow-up." Sold as Preserver + the Maximizer add-on — offense with the guardrail already installed.

The Index-Beater (walk away)

WHO	Benchmarks to the S&P obsessively, wants to beat it every quarter, measures success purely as return versus the index — with no weight on drawdown.
WHY RELEASE	Neither dial is built to win their game. In a smooth melt-up Preserver trails on purpose, they'll feel it acutely, and they'll churn and badmouth. Every one you sign is a future refund and a bad review.
THE GRACEFUL EXIT	"Honestly, this probably isn't the right fit — you want maximum return every year, and we're built to grow while managing the drawdown. That trade isn't for everyone, and that's okay." That line closes the right people in the room and earns respect from the wrong one.

Objection handbook

WHEN THEY SAY...	YOU SAY...
"It lags the market."	That's the feature. Reframe to drawdown: "You're trading a bit of bull-market upside for a fraction of the fall — Preserver's worst was –12.9% over five years while the market fell –25.4%. That's the whole trade."
"There's no long live track record."	Be honest — it's true. "Everything I'm quoting is walk-forward — no hindsight, tested as if traded in real time. We're transparent about the live rollout. Start small, watch it prove out." Never imply a live record we don't have.
"Why not just buy the index (VOO)?"	"Indexing has no downside management — you ride the full –55%, and most people panic-sell near the bottom. This is growth with a discipline overlay that keeps you in your seat."
"It's just momentum — that's crowded."	"The edge isn't a secret signal. It's the risk management, the regime adaptation, and the discipline built around momentum." The engine is ordinary; the brakes aren't.
"When does it get back in after it de-risks?"	"Automatically, as the regime turns constructive — it's rules-based and continuous, with no human deciding when to buy back." Removing that discretion is the point for advisers.
"How do I know the walk-forward is real?"	This is the diligence conversation: survivorship-free, point-in-time, includes companies that later failed, no hindsight. Use "survivorship-free" here , in diligence — it's table stakes, not an opening line.
"Which tier is right for me?"	Ask about the drawdown they can live with, not the return they want. "If a rough year would make you sell, start at Preserver. If you can hold a bigger swing for more growth, add Maximizer."

Qualify in five minutes

Ask these early. The answers sort the prospect into a persona — and tell you when to walk.

- “ "What kept you up at night in 2022?" — a real, specific answer = Preserver. A shrug = probably an index-beater.
- “ "How often do you compare your portfolio to the S&P?" — weekly benchmarking = churn risk, likely disqualify.
- “ "Have you ever sold near a bottom and regretted it?" — a yes is the anti-capitulation buying signal.

- “ "Is your goal to get rich, or to grow without getting poor?" — the cleanest A/F sort you can ask.
- “ "How big a drawdown could you sit through without selling?" — the honest number picks the tier for them.

Guardrails — sell honestly or don't sell

Always

Lead with the result + thesis (growth with drawdown discipline), not the methodology.

Disclose the bull-market lag up front — it filters and it builds trust.

Call every figure what it is: walk-forward, not a live record.

Set the multi-year expectation — this is not a quarter-to-quarter product.

Match the tier to the drawdown the person can actually sit through.

Never

Never promise beating the market or say "guaranteed" / "can't lose."

Never say "backtest" — it's always walk-forward. And never imply a live record we don't yet have.

Never lead with "survivorship-free" — it's table stakes, save it for diligence.

Never quote a single peak number — sell the durable edge + the drawdown discipline.

Never expose internal strategy mechanics or code names — sell the outcome, not the engine's guts.

Never sell to an index-beater just to hit a number. It costs more than it makes.

Internal & confidential — sales enablement only. Do not distribute to prospects or the public.

All performance figures are walk-forward (no hindsight), survivorship-free, and point-in-time over the periods stated, rounded for readability, and are not a guarantee of future results. Nothing here is investment advice or an offer of any security. RigaCap provides signals only — investors execute at their own broker. Reps must present all claims in compliance with applicable regulations and disclose that results are walk-forward and that the live track record is in its early stage.
